Hudson River Valley Greenway Annual Report 2015

At the end of 2015, the Hudson River Valley Ramble was honored by the New York State Outdoor Educators Association with an Environmental Impact Award. The award recognizes an individual or organization that influence environmental protection. We were pleased to accept the award on behalf of all of our partners whose work we amplify through their participation in the Ramble.

The Ramble is one of the Greenway's biggest successes because it embraces the fundamental principle that influenced the creation of our organization 25 years ago and remains a guiding force to this day. It is the principle that environmental values and economic development can go hand in hand. Indeed, by helping our partners connect people with environmental and heritage resources, the Ramble cultivates more environmental and cultural stewards each year. What's more, this celebration of our valley and its resources generates more than $21 million dollars in economic impact each year.

The Greenway has awarded more than $9.6 million to support over 770 grant projects that helped to plan communities, build trail connections, provide more public access, advance regional values in local projects, and connect people with the stories of the people and places that made the Hudson River Valley "the landscape that defined America."

Many studies have also identified the connection between trail development and economic development in communities and regions. In 2016, we will undertake an analysis of the Hudson River Valley corridor to identify connections to complete the Greenway Trail from New York City to the Capital Region first envisioned 25 years ago. The study will provide a template for more specific feasibility studies, inform future capital projects, and guide investments made through our grant programs.

Over the past 25 years the Greenway has provided catalytic support for planning, trails and heritage development projects. We were supporting 'sustainability' before the term existed in the parlance of environmentalism and community development and we recognize the significant impact our small grant have had in communities and the region as a whole. Since our creation under the Greenway Act of 1991, the Greenway has awarded more than $9.6 million to support over 770 grant projects that helped to plan communities, build trail connections, provide more public access, advance regional values in local projects, and connect people with the stories of the people and places that made the Hudson River Valley "the landscape that defined America."

This report includes a summary of our activities in 2015 and also summarizes the impact of the Hudson River Valley Greenway in our first 25 years of existence.

Greenway Water Trail Promotion/Trip Planning Project:

The Greenway has developed an interactive, smartphone optimized website and map series to support trip planning and recreation-based tourism related to the Hudson River Greenway Water Trail. A series of 4 map/guides are ready for production and posed for launch and distribution in in spring 2016. This project is funded through a $90,000 grant from Empire State Development to promote use of the Hudson River Greenway Water Trail. Sample map on right

Greenway Trail Gap Analysis: The Greenway began this project in 2015 to identify likely connections that would complete the trunk line north/south Greenway Trail route from New York City to the Capital region and beyond. The Greenway Trail route already includes over 260 miles of designated "river side" trails which have been mapped. While the vision of the Greenway Trail still puts primacy on the river corridor and visual/ physical access to the River, the route identified through this project will likely take advantage of the opportunities presented by the various regional trail systems currently being planning and developed. Identifying practical and implementable connections/routes and alternatives will require the development of a methodology that will consider a variety of factors to take advantages of opportunities and minimize obstacles. The final elements of the project should also serve to inspire implementation by providing focus on strategic areas for trail connections, and inspiring potential public and provide funders through compelling visualizations. The project is expected to be completed in the summer of 2016.

The Hudson River was one of the original "highways" used by Native Americans and continues to be a corridor of commerce to this day. This 61-mile section of the Water Trail features the Hudson Highlands, the widest part of the Hudson, Haverstraw Bay, and New York City.

National Park Service Washington-Rochambeau Route Waysides Unveiled

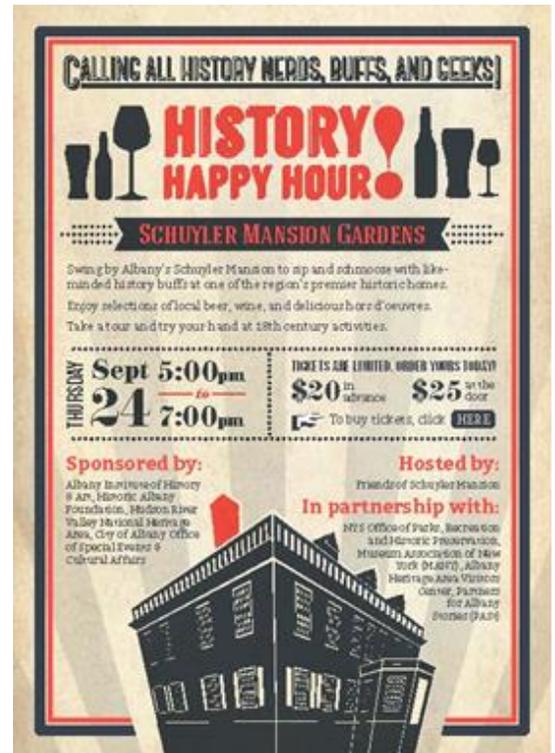

In September, National Park Service Wayside exhibits were delivered to 15 locations throughout the lower Hudson Valley, marking their significance on the Washington-Rochambeau Revolutionary National Historic Trail. The Route is one of the newest National Historic Trails in the nation and marks the route the Continental Army and allied French forces traveled from Rhode Island to the final victory over the British at Yorktown, Virginia during the American War of Independence.

On Saturday, September 19th, as part of the 6th Annual Revolutionary War Weekend event, the Fishkill Historical Society (FHS) and Friends of the Fishkill Supply Depot (FOFSD) unveiled the display panels marking the Fishkill Supply Depot site's inclusion in the Washington-Rochambeau Revolutionary Route National Historic Trail. Research has uncovered Fishkill's clear connection to the French forces that served in the Revolution.
